Liver Diseases in China

Of the 350 million to 400 million individuals worldwide infected with the hepatitis B virus (“HBV”), one-third reside in China, with 130 million carriers and 30 million chronically infected. During a 5-year period, 10.0% of patients with chronic hepatitis will develop cirrhosis, 20.3% of the cases will progress to decompensated cirrhosis and 6.5% of the people with cirrhosis and chronic hepatitis will develop hepatocellular carcinoma (“HCC”). 5-year survival for compensated cirrhosis is 55%, that for decompensated cirrhosis is 14%, and that for HCC is less than 5%. Every year, 300,000 people die from HBV-related diseases in China, including 180,000 patients with HCC. Since the Expanded Program on Immunization (“EPI”) beginning 1992, the prevalence of HBV has declined, especially among children 3 to 12 years old. However, the incidence of hepatitis B is still increasing, from 21.9 in 100,000 people in 1990 to 53.3 in 100,000 in 2003. This increase has occurred because of better screening programmes.

Next steps

1. Continue to aggressively promote AAMG's Singapore Specialists Centre in Hainan through digital and conventional marketing.
2. Stabalise the liver clinic's revenue and control the cost, continue to support the growth of AARO.
3. Continue to push, together with the Sultan of Johor 's support, for the 5-acre Iskandar land to be gazetted as a special zone for employment of foreign medical specialists.
4. Finalise the Joint Ventures for 5-acre Iskandar land in Malaysia, including the collaboration with ROSATOM for a nuclear medicine facility.
5. In addition to the salary cost cutting in Jan 2018 and May 2019, further reduction of 20%-40% in 1st quarter of 2020.
6. Human resource rationalisation which will include retrenchments and redesignations.
7. Reduction in clinic and office space to lower rental cost.

Thank you!
